Greetings power people!!!!!

I am constantly asked to give women affirmations to empower them, sustain them through their healing process, and enlighten them about how powerful they truly are. May you enjoy this book! May it remind you that as God's child you already have everything you need inside of you!

Use these affirmations however you like. A recommendation is to use them in accordance with your womb rhythm, which is more than just your menses. Use them during your meditation and prayer time. Breathe deep and get clear with your intentions. Be still and discover your womb rhythm and vibe with it! Some women use these affirmations in between their moon or menses. Some women use them in accordance with lunar cycles. Be Creative! Oh and be sure to reference the glossary before getting started!

Remember...

YOU ARE POWERFUL ENOUGH TO HEAL YOURSELF!!!

~ 5 Basic Womb Rituals to Create Inner Peace & Balance ~

Sacred Woman Exercise Your Power!!!!!

A ritual is a habitual practice that you choose to do. Simple rituals that we already do culturally every day include brushing our teeth, combing our hair, bathing, and so forth. Many Christians have rituals like communion, baptism, and so forth. Buddhists, and other religions practice different rituals as well. It is in human nature to create rituals.

This section gives you 5 very basic rituals that you can incorporate into your womb healing journey. You can add to these or adjust these rituals to your comfort level. These rituals are designed to incorporate all of the natural energies that the Creator has given us to remind us of how powerful we are. Those natural energies include, earth, wind, fire, and water and they flow through our bodies, our minds, and our spirits. These rituals will give you an opportunity to exercise your faith about your WombStory and healing process! Enjoy them!

Everything you need to be whole, healed, and at peace is inside of YOU!

Create the life you want to live!
Ritual 1: 7 Day Candle

Create a sacred space in your home where you can go to meditate and pray for 7 days. Bless that space with prayer and a sacred element like anointing oil, holy water, a smudge stick, or incense. Put a white cloth down and place a small plant on the cloth. Add a small glass bowl of water and refill as necessary over the next 7 days. Purchase a seven day candle that is white and some frankincense and myrrh essential oil. On day 1 hold the candle over your womb and speak your intentions and prayers out loud. Take the frankincense and myrrh oil and rub the outside of the candle with the oil and place 1-2 drops inside of the candle. Light the candle. Do not blow it out. Let it burn over the next 7 days in your sacred space. You can do this ritual in correlation with the affirmations. You can even write down an affirmation each day as you approach your space for meditation and prayer and leave it there until the end of the day. At the end of the day check in with yourself in your sacred space and express gratitude for the blessings and healing of your womb for that day.

Ritual 2: Womb Massage

As you begin to spend more time with your womb it is important to include physical touch as a healing mechanism. Lay flat on your back. Bring your knees up, then let them casually fall to the side. Take both hands and place them over your womb with your finger tips touching. Your womb is 1-2 inches below your belly button. Begin to massage at least 1/2-1 inch deep into your womb in a clockwise motion with your finger tips. Gently begin to breathe deep on a four count. After the fourth breath, say ‘I love you womb.’ On the next set of four breaths say ‘Womb you are free from dis-ease.’ On the next set of four breaths say ‘I allow you to be free from the past pain.’ Repeat as many cycles as needed. Once you feel a calmness over your spirit. Conclude the womb massage, by quietly doing 3 more sets of four deep breaths. Say nothing. Listen intensely to the rhythm of your womb and listen for her voice or messages. Slowly sit up, grab your journal and write how you feel after each experience. Your womb’s messages can always be found in your feelings.

Ritual 3: Energy Release

This ritual is a very important one, especially for women who have had some kind of sexual abuse or trauma or rape. If you have had physical, emotional, or mental abuse, this ritual is powerful for you as well. This ritual will teach you how to pull out, transfer, and transmute, negative energy that has been locked up in your womb due to traumas. This ritual should be done once the sun has set. Buy 5 lemons and 5 limes. Write 2 letters. The first letter is for yourself, acknowledging the experience, recalling the emotional memories of it, and getting all of that on paper. Take those 5 lemons and place them on your altar or in your sacred space on top of that letter. Take those 5 lemons and place them on your altar or in your sacred space on top of that letter. The second letter is to the person who abused you. Write down all the things that they did to you, how it impacted you, and conclude it with forgiveness. Take the 5 limes and place them on your altar or in your sacred space on top of that letter. Now, go before your God. Place your left hand on top of the lemons and your right on top of the limes and pray to the Divine for complete, absolute, resolution, peace, and freedom from the negative fruit of the experiences. Ask God to take the pain, guilt, etc. out of your body. Pick up the 5 lemons one by one and rub them clockwise over your womb and pray 'I remove the scars and dis-ease from my womb caused by this abuse.' Pick up the 5 limes one by one and rub them counter-clockwise over your womb and pray '[Name(s) of abusers] I command your essence and energy to leave my womb and return it back to you, from whence it came.' Take the 5 lemons and limes and give them to the Earth. Take them to a park, or some other area where you can release and remove that energy from your home and space. Do not release the lemons and limes in an area you frequent or your back yard. When you exit that place drive out the opposite direction that you drove in. When you arrive home take your shoes off, grab a sacred element (anointing oil, holy water, a smudge stick, or incense) and bless yourself, your home, your womb, and your mind. Bathe and rest.

Ritual 4: Emotional Balance

Get a piece of rose quartz crystal (raw or tumbled stone), lavender oil, cinnamon oil, epsom or dead sea salts, Dr. Bronner’s rose soap, and fresh flowers of your choice. This ritual is done best before bed and first thing in the morning. Run some bath water. Place the rose quartz crystal in the bath water. Place a little bit (no more than 4 drops) of the lavender and cinnamon oil in the water, some epsom or dead sea salts, the fresh flower petals, and some of Dr. Bronner’s rose soap. When the water is at the right temperature, get in the tub and kneel. As you are kneeling, take your wash cloth and begin to bathe yourself from the crown of your head, to your knees. As you feel the water running down your body and you ring out your rag, pray for emotional centering and grounding. Speak out the things on your mind that created inner turmoil for you and release them from your body, your mind, and your spirit. Call upon your God, your ancestors, and the power of ‘baptism’ in that bath and allow yourself to purge. This is not the kind of bath to be cute in. Let the water run through your hair, down your face, and scrub the days stress in a downward motion off of your body. When completed, sit in the bath to allow the water to become still and calm. Once you feel relaxed and relieved, drain the bath water, rinse off with semi-cool water and be in peace.

Ritual 5: Fire Ritual

This ritual requires easy access outdoors, pen and paper, palo santo wood chips, 1-2 charcoal rounds, a small clay pot, a lighter, and patchouli oil. I recommend completing this ritual outdoors if the weather permits. Take a pen and paper. Make a list of all the things you want to let go of that interfere with your womb balance and total healing. Examples could be poor eating habits, excess weight, bad relationships, etc. Take no more than 1 tablespoon of the palo santo wood chips and place them in the middle of the paper. Drop 2-3 drops of the patchouli oil on the wood chips. Begin to seal the paper with the chips in the middle. Hold the paper over your womb and pray for freedom in your mind, body, and spirit. Ask the Divine, as you light the fire, for the power of the Holy Spirit to purify you and release you from the things you wrote on the paper. After you are done praying, light the charcoal round and place it in the clay pot, once it is red entirely, place the paper with the wood chips on the charcoal round in the clay pot. As you see the smoke go up give praise for deliverance. Dance, sing, praise, and exercise your faith in motion to celebrate your new purified self! Let the entire paper burn up.
